Introduction

Overview

◀ The compact and practical Anywhere Case is the ideal personal storage solution. Designed to support you as you move from work task to work setting, whilst always ensuring the essential tools are on hand to get the job done. ▶

Introduction

Designers

Craig Jones Design is a small and dynamic team working out of their workshop and studio in West London. Dedicated to challenging convention and then re-imagining it, this team of unassuming designers thrives on the challenges of 'the problem' and its resolution through the most appropriate route not just the conventional one.

The Anywhere Case designed specifically for Herman Miller is a perfect example of the studios ability to see a problem and then reassess its impact and create an alternative approach to it.

Introduction

One Case, Many Uses

Horizontal

Ideal for desktop organisation Anywhere Case used horizontally helps the user maintain any clear desk policies employed in the workplace. Small stationery items and business cards can be secured in the elastic straps in the lid section, while the top 'shelf' section is useful for resting keys, mobile devices and other small items. When used in this position the deep lower level is ideal for organising paperwork, documents and notepads.

Introduction

One Case, Many Uses

Vertical

Used vertically, Anywhere Case allows easy access to paperwork and larger documents while the lower section can be used to prop up small notepads, display tablet devices, or used as a tray to allow easy access to smaller items.

Store and carry

When not in use, simply close the Anywhere Case and use as a portable device for storage. Its size fits easily into personal lockers and its weight makes it easy to transport important tools home or within the workspace – simply pack and go.
